UNSC Army personnel were typically shuttled to combat zones in conventional air transports, but the ubiquitous D77 Pelican was also employed for raids and long-range strikes. Pelicans provide the commander significant strategic mobility, as they can deploy troops and vehicles to any point on Reach within hours, then remain on station to provide fire support with ANVIL missile launchers and its autocannon.

Pelicans are the workhorse dropship of the UNSC, and is able to perform most aerial support missions. The cargo clamp on the back of the Pelican can carry most UNSC armoured vehicles, up to and including Scorpion main battle tanks.
